- Working with the Earth Energy & Water -

We are sorry, due to the Covid situation, the dowsing Forum has been postponed to the 19th of June. Instead we will have a Zoom Meeting with Maria Wheatley.

Geodetic energies interlace the planet, and we can locate, and interact with their energy anywhere on Earth, is a gift from Gaia to humanity. One of the most powerful forms of earth energy is deep, primary Yin water-water that is perpetually produced within the womb of Gaia-and is independent of rainfall. This type of deep water emits a geospiral energy pattern, and its frequency is 7-11 Hz, in perfect harmony with Gaia's Schumann Resonance.

Water has memory and our bodies are made of over 75% water. The geospiral energy can cleanse and heal our body water releasing old painful emotions, or shock trauma in a gentle and soothing manner. Maria has been working with the healing Yin water and its geospiral energy pattern for many years and she can demonstrate how to find this healing earth energy.

Maria Wheatley is a second generation dowser, author and international speaker. Maria inherited all the unpublished and published surveys of the Master Dowser Guy Underwood who rediscovered the Geodetic System of Earth Energies.

From the Editor

I hope that you all had a great time during the holiday break, and that the year 2022 will be a good year to all of us.

The coming of the new year is an opportunity for us to renew our energy and start afresh. This month I have chosen specific articles to help us implement that fresh start. We do not want to drag the low energies of the year 2021 into the new year 2022.

A refresh is needed, so that we can let new opportunities come to us, and allow us to live life to the full.

I had a good example of this a few days ago. A baby magpie, we called Birdy, came into our garden and sat on a branch looking a bit sad, spending most of his time on a nearby branch with his head under his wing. He let us come close without moving.

I put some mashed tuna on a plate and a bowl of water close by, then I went back in the house to observe Birdy through the window. He eventually came down from his branch, ate all the tuna and drank all the water. So now we are friends. He comes every day and has started to go for bugs, snails and worms, with his tuna breakfast.

When we come out he goes back to his branch close by, and observes and learns. It is lovely to watch a new life learn and evolve. All we need to succeed in life is the openness and the resources, surrounded with kindness and love. This little fellow has already assessed that we are on his side. We humans, also have something terrific on our side, we do not think much about it, but without it nothing would be there for us.

It is called LIFE. When it leaves, no one wants to hug you anymore. Yet when we have it, everything else takes precedence. We fill our life with actions so we cannot feel it, we put things in our ears so we do not hear it, and when we finally reach to feel that peace, we end up picking up that iPhone to check our social media. Lets turn this around this year!

Until next time,

François

An Eight-Year-Old's Introduction to Dowsing

By Dan McCarthy

Reprinted from the American Dowsers, Autumn 2021

I was born in Inchigeela, County Cork, Ireland, in 1939. This was just before World War II. We had 1/2 an acre of land on which we grew potatoes, cabbage, turnips, parsnips and lettuce; my mother kept 10 beehives that produced honey. My father was a carpenter and my mother took care of the hens, chickens, ducks, geese and an incubator that had 100 eggs that had to be turned over twice a day, so that she could sell day-old chicks at the market.

The first things I remember as a child were helping my mother to feed the chickens and hens and turkeys and, especially, going to the farmer's house on top of a big hill every evening to get pints of milk.

My mother, my brother and I, with my mother carrying a 'shiny gallon can' that the travelling tinkers had made for her, walked up a very steep hill on a narrow 'boreen' (narrow country road) that was full of potholes and rocks and turns and twists.

I must digress here. The travelling tinkers were, and still are, highly regarded in Ireland for their resourcefulness and carefree ways of living. The tinkers were married and had children.

They were well known by their names throughout the land. When I was young, they came and parked their horse-drawn caravan on the piece of property in front of our house. They would offer to make cups and saucers for my parents from old tin cans that were lying around.

We could see them set to work soldering and cutting and making beautiful cups, saucers, gallon cans, and heavy-duty buckets with lids. My parents paid them some money for their work and gave them potatoes and vegetables from our garden.

This is a photograph of my mother getting water from the well that was near the road where we lived.

In our house, in fact in all the houses around West Cork, there was no running water, no electric power, no indoor toilets, no radios, no TV, no telephones, and no communication with the outside world, except for word-of-mouth and, occasionally, the newspaper called the Cork Examiner.

We were fortunate indeed to have a large river that was called the Lee, which ran in front of our house on its way to the ocean in Cork Harbor. I will never forget one day when my mother took me to wash the clothes in the river. She was very busy with a washing board, scrubbing the sheets and towels and my shirts, when, all of a sudden, a very large salmon, which looked to be much taller than myself, jumped clear out of the water in front of my mother. The water was very deep water where she was washing the clothes.

Now, as I'm older, I can still see that salmon high in the sky, glistening in the sunshine with its beautiful colours, and making a big splash of water that drenched my mother and myself.

When I got a little older, about 8 years old, there was an old man in the village who was quite a character. He was known to be able to find water on the ground with a hazel rod that had a fork in it. So, I decided that I would try to do the same thing with a hazel rod that had a fork. In the woods near the house, I found a hazel tree that my brother and I always used to pick hazelnuts.

I cut a small branch down about as long as my arm. Then, when I got home, I cut and cleaned the branch. I went into the backyard where we grew potatoes and cabbage and hay, and I walked back and forth, holding the branch with two hands—one hand on each side of the fork.

There was one spot in the middle of the field where the branch would just turn down toward the ground and pull my hands with it. I told my parents that I thought there was water down there somewhere. They said, “You are a silly boy, you will grow up someday.”

I migrated to America and was stationed in Germany in the American army. One day I got a letter from home, from my mother. She told me that they bored down 300 feet and found some really good water on the spot where I had told her there would be water, and that they could now pump it into the house to have running water and clean toilets, and she didn't have to go to the well anymore for water.

That's my little story for you. I'm a solid believer in dowsing.

Quotes

When you get into a tight place
And everything goes up against you,
Till it seems as though you could not hang on a minute longer,
Never give up then,
For that is the place and time
That the tide will turn.

Dowsing the Etheric Bio-Field

By Melinda Iverson Inn

Reprinted from the Ozark Research Institute, Fall 2021

“Underlying the human body in all its parts is a vehicle called the vital or ‘Etheric’ body. It is composed of threads of force. These threads interpenetrate the entire body, and the nervous system, and are in reality the activating power of the nervous system.”

~ Alice A. Bailey

A few years ago, as I was working at home one day, dowsing a physical issue for a remote client, I received a telephone call from my friend Ed Stillman (Sky Dowser 2021).

In his soft, kind voice, Ed asked if I was busy. Fortunately, I just happened to be at a natural stopping place with my client, and responded that I was available.

After we exchanged heartfelt greetings, Ed told me that he and his wife Carolyn had sold their home in Sedona, AZ and were in the middle of a big move to a new house near their family in Northern California. Carolyn, surrounded by boxes and needing to get organized and wrapped up for the movers, had gotten quite stressed out. As a result, she'd come down with shingles, and was struggling a bit, almost unable to keep working.

“Oh,” I said, “Perhaps I could try Etheric Body Dowsing on her?”

Ed was eager to hear more, and said he'd accept assistance in any way that I could offer; his goal was helping Carolyn to regain her health and ease her pain.

In 2009, he and Carolyn had graciously invited me to come stay with them and learn well dowsing. With characteristic ease and humour, Ed had enthusiastically mentored me in map dowsing and well dowsing, but he knew my real passion was for health dowsing. He also knew that I'd studied Robert J. Wade-Mahany's work since 2003.

'Bob,' as he was known to friends and students, was a health dowser who was miles ahead of his time, always researching and developing ways to help people out of their own suffering.

For years, Bob had been doing his research with real issues and real people. Among his many discoveries during that time was, that one of the layers of the subtle body directly related to, and assisted with, the physical body. He called it 'the Etheric body.'

Alice Bailey

“According to Theosophists and Alice Bailey, a writer and teacher of the ‘Ageless Wisdom,’ who spread the meaning of esoteric philosophy worldwide, the Etheric body inhabits an Etheric plane which corresponds to four higher sub-planes of the physical plane.”

- Reynolds, John W., Author of 'Spiritual and Scientific Healing.'

According to Bob, the Etheric body is the first, or lowest, layer in the human energy field or aura. It's said to be in immediate contact with the physical body, to sustain it and connect it with 'higher' bodies. I'd learned of Etheric-body dowsing in 2003 from a direct student of Bob's; since then, I'd only used the technique here and there when it came to mind, but had pretty much placed that work on the back burner until 2015. All of a sudden this seemed to be exactly what was needed for Carolyn.

I mentioned this to Ed who said "Yes! Let's try it, and can you teach me?" I immediately emailed the original chart, and right there on the phone I started teaching Ed the elements of each of the steps in the protocols, all the while using Carolyn as the practice recipient.

Since Ed, Carolyn, and I are close, we knew we had permission to go ahead, but Carolyn had no conscious awareness then of our work with her. We went through each of the levels, dowsing together in all of the ten categories, laughing and chatting about the ideas and how they worked. Ed was so happy to learn this new dowsing technique, and I could feel his joy that we were actively trying to help Carolyn.

As we continued down to the last segment in the protocols, Ed suddenly interrupted me: “I hear something downstairs. Wait! Hold on! Is that the vacuum cleaner?” Ed took the phone downstairs with him and I heard him in the background speaking with Carolyn, who was up, out of bed, and vacuuming the bedroom. I heard Ed say with surprise, “You’re up and vacuuming?”. He got back on the phone with me and informed me in a delighted and amazed voice that Carolyn felt so good that she had decided to get up and “just felt like vacuuming.”

At this point both Ed and I were elated. “That Etheric dowsing sure did work!” Ed said, on the telephone all the way from Sedona, Arizona. I was sitting there at my desk in Glen Ellen, California with a big grin on my face, thinking: if Carolyn feels good enough to get up and vacuum, that works for me. For those of you who have had shingles, you know how painful and difficult that condition can be, and no doubt you also know it can take a few weeks to recover.

Both Ed and I were so happy that we could help Carolyn feel better. By the time we eventually hung up, I could tell that Ed felt more relaxed and better able to handle the rest of their life-changing move with a re-energized Carolyn by his side.

It humbles me and touches my heart to think back on that day when a master dowser reached out to a former well-dowsing student for assistance, with a loved one in the realm of health. I’ll never forget the experience.

Our ability to bridge the subtle body to the physical lies within our connection to our Etheric field. If we can understand the power of the focused mind and the intention to bring balance to the physical body through this field, then we will have started on a journey of understanding the availability of Source energy that can flow through us as a healing agent.

“Etheric Body Dowsing illustrates how to connect with the rich inner radiance and splendour of our energetic being. Melinda Iverson Inn elegantly describes how to assess and align the subtle organizing fields of energy within our Etheric Body for optimal health and wellness.

Our etheric energy body surpasses what we perceive of our material bodies, while providing the foundation for our health, prosperity, inner peace and joy. This comprehensive system of energetic tools can be used effectively on behalf of others and for ourselves, with powerful techniques for accessing any seemingly ‘hard-to reach’ places.”

~ Cynthia Sue Larson, Author of ‘Reality Shifts’

My gratitude to Carolyn Stillman for giving me permission to share her (and Ed’s) story.

Thanks also to Robert J. Wade-Mahany for his consistent and never-ending explorations in dowsing for the psyche and the body, and for his immense contributions to self-healing (and also for making sure that copies of his original manuscript found their way to me three different times-twice through Ed and Carolyn Stillman).

Practising Good Energetic Hygiene

By Shelly Wilson

Reprinted from the Ozark Research Institute, Winter 2021

Are you really as clean as you think you are? As an energetic being having human life experiences, the residue from these experiences can remain in our energetic body. Whether we consciously realize it or not, many times these experiences can affect us physically long after the actual experience occurred.

Much like we would practice good hygiene by showering our physical bodies, brushing our teeth, combing our hair and so on, it is essential to practice good energetic hygiene by clearing our chakras and aura regularly as well as keeping our energy centred and grounded.

Doing so benefits our physical health and mental/emotional well-being. The following tips will assist you with attaining and maintaining a balanced energy system, so that you can sparkle and shine bright!

Grounding

Grounding our energy keeps us present and in the moment. It completes the energy circuit and anchors our energy to the earth below.

Keeping firmly planted energetically helps prevent feelings of fuzziness or 'spacey-ness' that can often disperse our personal energy. Being grounded will help us feel more balanced and stable.

To ground your energy, visualize your legs as tree roots growing deep into the earth. Then, visualize energy passing from the Root chakra to the centre of the Earth, or roots sprouting from the bottom of the feet. Drinking water and staying hydrated, going barefoot, gently stomping your feet a few times and walking outside in the grass are ways to ground your energy as well.

Crystals, such as haematite, black tourmaline, jet, obsidian and smoky quartz, work well, too. Not only do these crystals assist in grounding and protecting one's energy, but they also dissolve negativity and harmonize body, mind and spirit.

Centring

Centring our energy involves finding that calm spot deep inside us that is eternal 'being-ness' and connecting to the peace within. To begin, visualize a white ball of light at your core, which is the Solar Plexus chakra, with this light transforming into yellow light to centre your energy. Then, take a few deep breaths and bring awareness inward to the central essence, that place that is peaceful and serene no matter what.

When our energy is centred, we have the ability to affect the energy that is around us rather than allowing the energy around us to affect us. Simply speaking, it allows us to respond rather than react to situations.

Clear and Balance Chakras

Clearing and balancing our energy centres is an easy task to accomplish. Doing so clears the energetic clutter and revitalizes our energy.

As we become more adept at visualizing the chakras and their associated colours, we can do this very quickly. Begin with the red Root chakra, move upwards to the orange Sacral chakra, up to the yellow Solar Plexus chakra, then to the green Heart chakra. Continuing upwards to the blue Throat chakra, up to the purple Third Eye chakra and finally, we are at the white Crown chakra. This simple exercise will enable you to visualize each one of these chakras being their respective vibrant color, healthy, cleared and balanced.

Clearing the Aura

Taking an Epsom or sea salt bath will assist with clearing our auric field. A purification bath comprised of one pound Epsom salt and one 450 gm bottle of hydrogen peroxide is soothing. You may be guided to add some drops of your favourite essential oil as well. Lighting dried sage and outlining your body with the smoke of the burning sage is another technique. This can also be done with incense.

Another suggestion is doing a dry wash. To do this, hold your hands a few inches above your physical body. As you move your hands in a washing motion, visualize clearing the stagnant energy from your auric field. Then, shake your hands to disperse the cleared energy.

Cutting Energetic Cords

Cutting cords assists with clearing the lower vibrational emotions from our energy field. There can be an energetic cord between us and every person we have had a relationship or even simply an encounter with. This can include interactions in the grocery store, work environment and even while driving on the roadway. The intention is to clear the heavier, lower vibration energy that may accumulate.

The process is simple, and it's energetically healthy to cut these cords periodically saying, "I cut cords to anyone and anything that no longer serves me or my Higher purpose," while either doing a swiping, cutting or chopping motion in front of your Solar Plexus chakra. The cords being cut are lower vibrational cords associated with fear, worry, doubt, guilt, shame, frustration, regret, jealousy, etc.

Cords associated with love will grow back instantaneously, so there is no reason to fear cutting cords.

Please excuse my bluntness with the next suggestion. Being human, we eliminate waste from our physical bodies. At the same time this bodily function is occurring, we can also envision (without visualizing the process) the energetic waste being eliminated as well.

Protect our Energy

Protecting, also known as shielding, is important to keep our energy protected from another person's junk and helps keep personal energy separated. An easy protection technique is to visualize a white light or a bubble surrounding you.

Some people prefer to envision themselves wrapped in a cloak, wearing a cape or carrying a shield. Use the visualization that feels most comfortable and resonates best with your energy at the time. Only love can penetrate this protective shield; everything else will be dispelled and fall away.

Clearing our Home's Energy

Clearing physical clutter from our home is necessary to change the energy. Removing unused items, by discarding, donating or selling them, will instantly provide a shift in the home's energy. Intentionally choosing personal decor that fits our personality will lighten our space.

In addition to clearing the physical clutter, setting the intention to clear our space energetically can be achieved by lighting a candle or burning incense as well as 'saging' (smudging) our space. Clearing our home's energy can also be accomplished while doing housework. As you dust the furniture, sweep the floor and vacuum carpet, you can easily clear energy at the same time. Recognizing that emotions can linger in our home, this type of clearing will alter the energy in our space very quickly.

Every Thought Leads to Creation

By Bella Capozzi

Reprinted from Shift Frequency.com

There is precious little that you think that does not, in some way, manifest itself in your outer world.

Somewhere, somehow, that seemingly insignificant thought lives on in the form of a manifested reality. Somebody's reality, if not your own.

You are a powerful Creator Being, so take particular care to always remember this. Remember that you have the power to do anything and to be anything, and also to produce that which you wish to experience as your physical reality. It is not only your thoughts which have this power, but your words and actions, too.

The spoken word is made up of tone, and tone carries within it highly transformational frequencies and messages. You may not recognize that they are there, and it is not necessary that you do. Much goes unnoticed by you, yet that does not mean it does not exist. Endeavour, if you will, to be accepting of new ideas and perspectives. Try embracing manners of being which might seem, at present, to be somewhat 'outside the box.' For what is radical today shall be the norm tomorrow.

Choose with loving care the words you speak. The way you carry yourself. Be of a non-judgmental nature. Care for every creature breathing as you would your own – for they are your own. You are entering into a kinder paradigm, a sweeter place, one where all living beings are united as a single consciousness.

Fear not, as this does not mean that you shall cease to be uniquely you. Nor does it indicate a loss of your individual spark or personality. It does not mean such a thing at all. What it means is that what affects one affects the rest in equal measure. Competition shall cease to be, one shall not feast whilst the other starves. No hatred, no war, no vengeance. What pains one shall pain the other, so therefore none shall seek to cause another pain. It is so simple, is it not?

If it is fear of this called ‘Unity’ which is keeping you from acknowledging the changes taking place around you, then know that such fears are groundless. You needn’t fear that which you don’t remember because it shall all become crystal clear to you in due time.

Allow Grace to flow within and around you, fully knowing that you shall never lose yourself, but shall instead find yourself growing into a far more refined version of who you are. Allow, allow, allow... All proceeds as planned. All is right and good, you see. What shall you create today? Choose wisely. Let each creation be another building block in the creation of the New Earth.

Journey into the Holiday Season with Ease and Peace

By Shelly Wilson

Reprinted from the Ozark Research Institute, Winter 2020

The holiday season can be a very stressful time for a lot of people. This stress may involve shopping for gifts and the associated financial aspects as well as the interaction with family during get-togethers.

If you feel anxious and tend to dread the holiday season, take a moment to breathe in deeply and let go of the lower and heavier vibrational emotions of fear, worry, doubt, regret, guilt, shame, anger, frustration, etc. and breathe in the higher vibration of love.

Allow yourself to acknowledge those individuals and situations that are triggers for you as well as those people, places and things that push your buttons, so that you can clear those triggers from affecting you anymore.

When you notice a tightness in your jawline and recognize that you may grind your teeth or clench your jaws, this can be an indication of holding in the frustrations. It may also mean that there are words you are not expressing. It could also just mean that you are stressed, or perhaps, it is all of the above. If you realize that you are not expressing yourself fully, you may be guided to at least say what you need to telepathically/energetically if you feel that you are unable to verbalize the words at that time.

In those instances that you feel annoyed, bothered or triggered, in that moment state aloud or in your mind, “This bothers me. This is affecting me. I feel annoyed.” Express whatever wordage that would apply. In doing so, you are choosing to clear the energy in that moment rather than allowing it to build.

Recognize that it is absolutely necessary for you to honour yourself and what YOU are feeling, especially during the holiday season. Consciously choose to acknowledge any emotions you are feeling and then release them. You are in control of your thoughts, words, actions, emotions and reactions. You choose how you wish to perceive an experience and how you wish to respond to it.

Ways to Reduce Stress

Here are a few tips to energetically assist you in having a stress-free holiday season or simply assist with reducing stress:

Tip #1 - Be Present

Focus your energy on being present and in the Now at this very moment. Allow yourself to become fully aware and completely present right here, right now. Being present involves living in the moment rather than focusing on the future or dwelling in the past. Focus on living, being and breathing in the moment. Being present also entails being present with those in your presence.

Tip #2 - Breathe

Take a moment to breathe in deeply and exhale anyone and anything that no longer serves you. Be mindful of your inhalations and your exhalations. Two to three times a day for 2-3 minutes, take a moment to pause in order to clear your mind and open your heart. Visualize yourself breathing in emerald green healing energy, then exhaling the pain, hurt, fear, frustration, worry and doubt. Release it and let it go. We breathe naturally and autonomously. This is a reminder to breathe consciously.

Tip #3 - Ground Your Energy

Grounding your energy keeps you present and in the moment. It completes the energy circuit and anchors your energy to the earth below. Keeping firmly planted energetically helps prevent feelings of fuzziness or spacey-ness that can often disperse your personal energy. Staying hydrated and visualizing your legs as tree roots growing deep into the earth are simple ways to ground your energy. Working with grounding crystals, such as haematite, smoky quartz, black tourmaline, jet or obsidian are also ways to ground your energy.

Tip #4 - Center Your Energy

Centring your energy involves finding that calm spot deep inside yourself that is eternal being-ness. To centre your energy, take a few deep breaths and bring awareness inward to the central essence - that place that is peaceful and serene no matter what the external circumstance.

Think of the phrase, 'Calm, cool and collected' as you exhale and smile. By centring your energy, you are able to more easily attain the peace within. In doing so, you are more likely to respond rather than react to your external circumstances.

Tip #5 - Release and Receive

Release feeling obligated to reciprocate when someone gives you a gift. Allow yourself the ability to receive without giving. Honour yourself and what you are feeling, but there is no need to hold onto the 'feel bad' or 'guilt' energy. Simply receive and sincerely say, "Thank you!" If you are the giver, release the expectation that a gift will be reciprocated. Be mindful of the intention behind giving.

Tip #6 - Give the Gift of You

If you typically exchange gifts with a friend, family member or co-worker, you may be guided to do something different this year.

Many individuals do purchase what they need when they need it, so you may choose to forgo giving a material gift and instead give the gift of you. Plan an excursion or get together and spend time with someone you love.

You may also want to volunteer your time or donate to a favourite charity or worthwhile cause. Perhaps, you may bake a special treat or create a handmade gift. These thoughtful gifts and the gift of your presence is immeasurable and greatly appreciated.

Tip #7 - Express Your Gratitude

Gratitude is an expression of thankfulness. The simple words, thank you, extend far beyond their utterance. They are an acknowledgement of appreciation. Acknowledging and expressing gratitude for all you are thankful for radiates this energy out into the universe and returns in more blessings. Honouring yourself every day and not just during the holiday season will create a ripple effect throughout your life. Rather than isolating yourself, consciously choose to honour yourself.

Remember, your mental / emotional well-being is a key aspect of your physical health. Consciously choose to journey into this holiday season with ease and peace.

Dowsing Progression

*By Dr. Arthur R. Bailey,
British Society of Dowsers, June 1976*

It might help some of you to realise that the one universal thing in dowsing is that there are no fixed laws, so far as I am aware, with the result that people use different techniques but may all end up with an identical answer.

Some people who use the Mager Rosette get black for good water. Now if I got black I wouldn't touch that water with a barge pole. But in a sense you tend to make your own rules in dowsing, and so long as you understand what they mean that is the only thing that matters.

I came into dowsing originally by getting Asian flu. If I hadn't been desperate for reading matter I should probably never have learned about dowsing. I asked my wife if she could get me a book on dowsing at the local library, because I had always been mildly inquisitive about it. When I read about it, it all sounded terribly far-fetched. I forget which book I read, but I know there was a picture of a rather sombre-looking Frenchman in a top hat holding a pendulum.

There was an illustration of angle rods and I made a pair for myself with wooden handles. With these I ambled round my garden, feeling rather idiotic. It was the limit to what I could do at that time, I found that whenever I went over things which I knew were there, such as gas pipes and main drains, the rods moved, but they didn't move very far.

Some people seem to think that dowsers are born, they pick up a rod, it reacts, and everything is wonderful, but it didn't happen that way with me. I started very gently, and when I went over something which would give me a mighty reaction nowadays the rods moved – just a little way. I kept going backwards and forwards and rechecking. Now I knew enough about psychology to realise that this could be auto-suggestion, which can be extremely powerful, so I proceeded to go a bit further.

I found that there were other areas in my garden where the rods crossed which had nothing whatever to do with anything I knew about. I discovered the cold water supply to our house, which was not where it was shown on the plans. I discovered a line that came diagonally out of my house, and whenever I went over it my rods swung in. I pegged it out. It went across the road and stopped, and whenever I checked it always stopped in exactly the same place.

I took a hammer and chisel and went straight down to the stop tap cover. There was about an inch of tar macadam on top of it. Now that was what convinced me that there was something in dowsing, because I had had no means whatever of knowing that it was there.

Blue Mountains Dowsers

The Blue Mountains Dowsers are starting 2022 with a riveting presentation by Megan Heazlewood on Crop Circles. It's at 2pm on Sunday 6th February 2022 in the Mavis Wood Hall of the MMCC Lawson, and we are hoping many of our Sydney members can attend.

Megan will be giving a paradigm-busting presentation on The Crop Circle Phenomenon. She has been studying all aspects of crop circles since 2000, and will be sharing her extraordinary and life changing experiences in Wiltshire UK during the height of the crop circle seasons of 2006 and 2007.

Topics of important focus includes:

- The scientific research on plants and soil. The most important contribution to our understanding of this phenomenon.
- Evidence of other highly anomalous features.
- What the symbols and geometry communicate. Includes startlingly unambiguous examples, and much more.

You're Not Broken: 5 Steps to Become Super-conscious and Activate Your Magic

This is the cover blurb, maybe take it with a grain of salt! If you want to create a life you love, transform your reality, and manifest miracles with ease, this book is for you. You don't have to 'fix' anything about yourself to do it. You don't have to think a certain way, heal your past, clear your emotions, or embrace any specific belief system.

It's time to forget everything you know about the power of manifestation. Learn to connect to the hidden field of information where your intuition, inner 'instructions,' and natural genius are stored, remembering the powerful creator you already are. Make changes at the highest level and transform your life like magic.

A complete system in a simple eight-week plan, this is the first and last book you will ever need on manifestation, creation, or self-help. If you're ready to live a super-conscious life, get started today.

Speaker for February 20th, 2022

Anne Morjanoff

- Numerology and the Way Forward -

Here we are again lining up more 2's after the grounding effect we've experienced since 2020.

We've seen a changing vista throughout 2021, with the media kept busy on many fronts. There have been abundant mixed messages, with copious opinions touted about a myriad of subjects that have affected our living conditions.

Now we're approaching an uncertain 2022. In early 2022, with interesting planetary configurations, the big question is: "Will the lineup of 2's this year be any different from 2020?" Encouragingly, conditions can be interpreted differently from 2020, despite the overwhelming effect of the many restrictions we've endured.

Two years on, Anne will look at the likely connections about to unfold during this adjustment period. She will note specific phases to observe as we embark on the next segment of this particular timing cycle. If participants are interested, she could incorporate a brief reference to their personal timing.

Anne has been keenly aware of the influence of numbers for decades. Her intuitive understanding and insights from studies of number symbolism, especially synchronicity, have proffered a significant level of re-assurance and clarity.
