Speaker for July 16th, 2023

- You Can Have It All -

- Yuliana Francie -

Yuliana Francie's life experiences of growing up in Indonesia as a Catholic, Chinese, female: the minority trifecta! She immigrated to Australia, where she developed a successful corporate career as an accountant, survived a toxic relationship, sexual harassment, near bankruptcy, and workplace bullying.

Those experiences led her to develop a life mission to embolden women to live life on their own terms. She transformed her life. Do you ever look at your life as a list box that you need to tick off?

Deep down you believe that when you tick all boxes, then everything will be perfect. Then, somehow a golden key appears in your hand so that you can unlock a secret vault containing a happiness fountain and fulfilment of your childhood dream.

Yuliana did! But instead of finding her happiness, she resented herself which built up rage inside her, Because she did everything she could to be like a chameleon or a wind-up doll!

Simply turn your key, and she will tell you exactly what you want to hear! But, an approximation of honesty to your soul will never cut it!

So what does it take to have it all? To live a life that is fulfilling to your soul as well as pleasing your human needs. Join Yuliana in this one-hour interactive presentation on uncovering your secret to have it all!

Come and find out!

Time is churning along, we are already at the half point of the year. The cold of winter for many brings those little annoying health issues most of us experience. So this month we will look at how to stay well and healthy as long as we can.

For myself I have scanned the kitchen cupboard for any forgotten health improvement solutions. I have cleaned, brushed and re-installed the colloidal silver machine, extracted the tray of cell salts to dowse which ones to take, and replaced the reverse osmosis water filter.

We are so lucky in that we have the perfect tool to check the relevance of all the health recipes we put away when summer came. Never underestimate the power of the pendulum and of your dowsing skills. When going to the doctor is not an option because your ailment is either too small or too big, dowsing is there for you.

Actually, in August we will be having our dowsing forum again (see page 26). The last one, almost a year ago now, was so good. It really inspired me to extract more use out of my dowsing. I have the skills but I get lazy and forget, sometimes with disastrous results. Something that could be resolved rapidly with a few quick questions, can linger get bigger and sometimes ‘out of hand’. Then the question comes “Why didn’t I dowse it right when it started? I would have saved myself a lot of trouble”.

So, what to do? Write down a set of questions to ask your dowsing system. Review them with someone else as if they were the dowsing system itself, to see if the question makes sense and has a clear “Yes / No” answer. Make sure the questions progress to a logical diagnostic conclusion. Then ask for solutions out of a set of possibilities relevant to the diagnostic.

You will be surprised, maybe that rash on the side of your face was an allergic reaction to the delicious, but very spicy, meal you had at that new restaurant after all. (It was for me, believe it or not, and it’s gone now).

Until next time,

François

Noxious Earth Energies' Influence on Humans (Part 2)

By Kathe

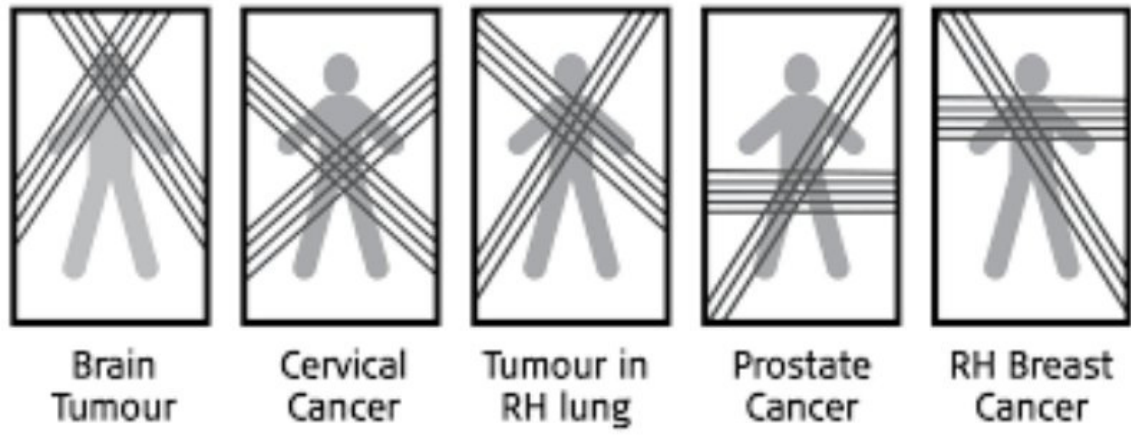

British Society of Dowzers, December 1987

In Carinthia, a teacher asked me after my lecture to help a girl who was always ill. Verena used to sleep with her head over a Curry Crossing and an underground stream. She had nightmares, screamed in her sleep, often ran a temperature and frequently had to miss school. She was very sensitive, small for her age and was often troubled by stomach ache and nausea.

When once she instinctively slept the other way round, she slept better but lost her pillow because she had tried to move away too far. I suggested to her to sleep next to the door. A month later I received a letter from her mother saying: "Our daughter Verena is sleeping and feeling much better altogether." A year later I learnt that she had grown a lot and was doing much better at school.

In Vorarlberg a 13-year-old boy was an absolute failure at school despite the fact that he was both intelligent and hard-working. He could not concentrate at all. His bed was on a Curry Crossing and an underground stream. His state of anxiety was such that during the night the light had to be kept on and the door to his parents' bedroom had to stay open. In the morning he felt giddy and had no appetite. He also suffered from worms. The place where he did his homework was the cat's favourite place.

He would sit there, shaking and rocking to and fro, unable to learn anything. He often got up and went away saying: "Nobody's given us any homework anyway". That, of course, was just an excuse, a white lie. His parents were very worried. Finally they began to pray fervently and their prayers were answered. After moving his bed and giving him a different place for doing his homework ‘everything’, as they put it, was all right again.

I ended up having to investigate also the sleeping and workplaces of grown-ups whose health had failed to improve despite many years of medical treatment. In all these cases I found heavy interference zones.

In the Province of Salzburg, a doctor asked me to go and see a young farming couple who had been very ill for years. The husband suffered from cramp in his legs, pain in his kidneys and exhaustion. His wife suffered from severe rheumatism and hypertension. In these beds, both her parents had died of cancer at an early age. I advised them to move the beds to the other side of the room. Her immediate comment was: “That’s exactly where my grandparents had their beds. They both enjoyed good health and lived to a ripe old age”.

The couple moved their beds straightaway, but suffered to begin with from reaction effects, i.e. for three weeks their condition and accompanying pain got worse, but then they made a complete recovery. It is extremely important for all to know that the last place to put a bed is where someone has already died of cancer.

With gout and rheumatism, interference zones are always one of the main causes, though diet is often a contributory factor. The head of an SOS Children’s Village in Cochabamba in Bolivia suffered from gout and rheumatism because she slept in a bed exposed to strong interference. Her health improved once her bed was moved.

It was in Tirol that I came across the most wretched person of all. Everybody said of her: “She's not all there”. Even her doctor told me: “The fact is this woman only imagines she's ill!” Such comments, apart from being wrong, are also unloving and hurtful. This nice young woman was so sensitive that she was affected by all kinds of interference, including that from a TV set when switched on, despite the fact that it was 5m away from her, at the other end of the house.

The cancerous tree in the garden and the crack in the wall of the house had already indicated that interference zones were present. The last specialist she had consulted had confirmed that she was seriously ill. I recommended a place for her bed in the living room. A few months later I received a postcard: “I am now much, much better”.

At an international conference on education in Salzburg we were shown a film about the Neuro Clinic. The effect on all of us was shattering. Afterwards, in the discussion, I said: “What I find particularly shocking is the fact that up till now so little has been done to inform people and help them to avoid the sad fate of ending up in a Neuro Clinic. In my experience so far with the mentally ill who had to be put into a Neuro Clinic, as well as in all suicide cases, strong interference zones were always present and these must at least in part be held responsible. Such was the case of the young secretary employed by a local firm of solicitors who one day had to be taken straight from her office to the Neuro Clinic.”

Another young woman used to feel freezing cold in bed, suffered from most severe depression, had migraine attacks which almost drove her out of her mind, had heart palpitations when lying in bed, suffered from nausea and had stomach ache. She was sent to the regional hospital for a thorough check-up and because they could not find the cause of all her troubles she was sent to the Neuro Clinic.

There, too, they were unable to discover what was wrong with her. So they decided to keep her in for further observation. Fortunately her husband took her home, against the advice of the hospital. A neighbour gave her my book. Only then did she realise the connection between her severe illness and the interference zones. She asked me urgently for help. In her case, too, moving her bed led to a speedy recovery.

After reading my book, the German dentist and dental surgeon, Dr. Ros-saint, invited me to spend a week with him in Aachen as a result of reading my book. He asked me to accompany him on a visit to those patients whose wounds had taken a long time to heal.

All of them were found to be lying in strong interference zones. The last case but two I should like to discuss in greater detail: a dentist had been suffering from a very bad heart condition for as long as 17 years. A doctor advised him to undergo an expensive heart operation that would cost over £16,000, and without any guarantee of success. It was a good thing that the dentist had been unable to make up his mind whether to go in for this operation or not. Three weeks after moving his bed away from the crossing of interference zones he was already 50% better, so I learnt from a letter he sent me.

Dr. and Mrs. Schoppenhauer from Bonn attended my lecture in Cologne and begged me to investigate their flat. The wife had a large malignant tumour in her gall duct which was inoperable. A naturopath managed to dissolve the tumour by homoeopathic injections and by insisting on a strict diet. The doctors at the hospital were amazed at this success. The naturopath urgently recommended an immediate investigation of the patient's sleeping place because in every case of cancer an interference zone crossing is a contributory factor. Only after having moved the bed to a good place was the patient able to make a complete recovery.

Here the patient felt decidedly comfortable, whereas in the bad places she felt a degree of discomfort. Everybody should take notice of and obey such 'hunches'.

A doctor and his wife asked me to come and see them in Berlin. The husband had a heart condition. His first wife just couldn't stand the stress of the double crossing of interference zones underneath their bed. So she left, subsequently divorcing him. His second wife constantly suffered from such severe stomach ache when in bed that she was on the verge of despair.

One of the reasons for many marriages breaking up, and a reason ignored until now, is that both partners are exposed to the harmful effects of interference zones as a result of which they are irritable and never really feel well. I know of many married couples who felt very much better after moving their beds and were able to forgive each other and live together again happily.

For years a musician had suffered from severe stomach ache. No doctor had been able to help him. Finally he went to see a surgeon who gave him a thorough check-up. "I'm not sure," said the surgeon, "whether your liver is responsible for your serious illness. I should first have to open you up." In despair, the patient said: "All right, open me up then". He did so. There was nothing wrong with his liver.

But where did the constant pain come from then? From the double interference zone crossing! A naturopath is able to detect which organ is defective without cutting his patients open, either by iridology, reflexology or by using a pendulum. By these methods a correct diagnosis can be made quickly and accurately. Such methods should also be learnt by orthodox doctors as back-up methods and applied in cases which fail to respond to orthodox treatment.

After giving a lecture in Switzerland I was asked by a dentist to investigate the flat of some friends of his. Some time ago their 12 year-old daughter had developed a severe backache during a gym lesson and it had never gone away. She had already been to hospital twice for a thorough check-up, but without result.

For the last eight weeks she had been confined to bed with a cramp-like pain and her doctor had told her that he didn't think she was imagining her pain, but because no physical cause had been found he suspected that the problem must be a mental one, and that he thought it best to send her to see a psychiatrist. Water and a Curry Crossing were the cause! Her bed was moved immediately.

A few weeks later her mother wrote: "My daughter is well again! She didn't need to go and see the psychiatrist! Our doctor too is pleased. You have completely convinced him!" Six years later I had a letter from the girl herself, together with a photo. "Every night," she wrote "I thank God for my good sleeping place and for giving me good health. It makes my flesh creep when I think of the time when, for months on end, I tossed and turned in bed, racked with pain."

On the recommendation of Bishop Heinrich Forer I was invited to give a series of lectures in the Italian part of South Tirol. Here, too, just like in Austria, Germany and Switzerland, the audiences were open-minded and showed great interest. After each lecture people who were ill and at their wits' end kept coming up to ask whether I could investigate their homes.

The husband in this particular family had toothache and a sore throat, whilst his wife suffered from a whole range of complaints - from pain in the heart region, from operations to remove her appendix, and from diarrhoea and neuritis. Soon afterwards she wrote to me: "Since moving our bed we are both sleeping much better and I don't need any more sleeping pills!"

All serious illnesses I have found up to now to occur above interference crossings: twitching, tinnitus, facial paralysis, angina, asthma, heart attacks, strokes, inflammation of the kidneys, cancer (in more than 700 cases without exception) etc. Doctors say that our immune system is weakened by constant radiation so that, depending on one's constitution and the prevalent influences, different diseases can develop.

My own dear sister Barbara - Sor Emerentiana, went to Bolivia as a nurse. She was especially interested in looking after the poor Indians and was very fond of them. I was privileged to support her work from Austria. Tragically she too fell prey to an interference crossing. When I flew over in 1972, all I was able to do was visit her grave. But I am determined even now to do all I can to help these people.

When working as a dowser, instead of a fee, I always ask for a contribution towards helping the Indians. I myself live on my pension as a teacher. On my first world trip I visited Argentina, Bolivia and Brazil; on my second trip the USA, Peru and again Bolivia; and on my third trip Bolivia, Peru, Colombia, Mexico, the USA and Spain.

I should like to thank with all my heart the well known doctor German Duque, M.D., of Colombia, for translating my lecture and my books and also the well known doctor Enrique de Castillo, M.D., of Mexico, for publishing my paperback 'The Good Place'.

I am more than pleased that through my lectures and books I have been able to spread the knowledge about 'The Good Place' in Latin America as well - knowledge which is of such great importance, and I sincerely hope that it will help many, many people.

Clearing for Dowsing

By Kathryn Deputat

The American Society of Dowsers, Spring 2017

As dowsers, we know we must ‘get out of the way’ to yield clear and accurate dowsing responses. We know that the ego cannot dowse reliably, so anything that helps put the ego aside and clear the way for dowsing is a good thing. I was a body dowser long before I’d ever heard of dowsing.

I taught ‘deviceless’ dowsing in my classes over the years. I had learned and cultivated a way of listening that gave access to true inner wisdom, and then conceived a reliable method to access it.

This method, the subject of my new book, ‘Clarity Now: Simple Steps to Your Perfectly Clear Answer’, opens an invisible door to what we don’t know that we know -- the door to ‘gnosis’, which is the divine knowing or ‘inner’ knowing. Engaging with the method yields clarity, but also is excellent training in how to formulate clear questions and asking them powerfully.

The clarifying process always starts with “I don’t know.”

“I don’t know why I always get involved with needy people.”

“I don’t know how to attract abundance.”

“I don’t know where to go on vacation.”

“I don’t know why I can’t seem to lose weight.”

Next comes intention. We know that form follows thought, that thought is creative. So setting an intention sets the direction or the end point of the process. Whatever one intends can be fulfilled, but to fulfil an intention you must have an intention to start with!

To formulate an intention, we state the 'I know' version of whatever it is we say we don't know, then write it down in the form of a declaration: "I will leave this process knowing how to attract abundance".

A strong intention is clear and powerful, with no extra words. Once we've pinned down the intention (and it may take a while to do so), we go digging. We dig through the layers of dust or interference that obscure our clarity, our ability to see and to know what we think we don't know. And we ask questions. Dig and ask questions.

Engaging this process is deviceless dowsing. Every step of it is streamlined, exquisite training in keen listening and clear seeing (or clairvoyance). More simply said, it is training in reliably recognizing one's yes and no answers. Using this method develops one's energy-sensing skills as well. We often identify the powerful "Yes" choice/response/answer by its stark contrast to the weak energy of the "No" choices/options/answers.

"But can't we reach that YES or NO sooner using dowsing tools?" Perhaps. Remember, our answers are only as good as our ability to clear the way for them, to let ego step aside. As we sift through the dust piles of our confusion, indecision, quandary, or static interference, we begin to uncover the root of the matter in question. Often we discover a hidden intention is undermining our best intentions. We discover, for example, something like this:

"When I'm vulnerable, people take advantage of that, so I don't trust people. If I keep all this extra weight on me, it'll keep people away. I don't have to risk getting hurt again. I get to stay safe."

This is one of countless examples of the sort of wisdom, clarity, or sophisticated knowing (in this case a dominant, sabotaging counter-intention that overrides the intention to lose weight) that routinely surfaces as one follows the Simple Steps to one's Perfectly Clear Answer.

Hidden counter-intentions can foil our dowsed answers. I can dowse all day about weight loss – how, why, the benefits, the best food/diet, supplements, etc. – and receive accurate answers, but still not succeed in my endeavour (to lose weight) simply because there is another, even stronger driver (intention) hidden from view that ultimately holds sway.

We need to know and ask the right questions, such as:

“When did x ($x = \text{the confusion}$) begin?”

“What do I say/think about x ?”

“What is my payoff for staying stuck?”

“Do I need more information?”

Such questions, as with all steps of the clarifying process, will root out hidden drivers and their detrimental interference and bring them into the light of day. Seeing what we've never seen and cannot 'unsee' changes everything. All at once we have a choice where once there was none, and we are free and clear!

Black Lines and Bees

By Glan Jones

Reprinted from the Canadian Society of Questers Summer 2023

These black lines have a purpose! Many years ago, when I first got interested in dowsing, I read an article in one of the dowsing journals in which the author had written that he believed certain animals would always make their homes on black lines.

Bees, wasps, ants etc. and he also mentioned oak trees. My logic told me that while wild insects could choose where they decided to make their home, kept honey bees would have to live wherever their hives were placed, and oak acorns would have to germinate where they had fallen from the tree. At that time, the only ones I could check out were some really healthy oak trees in a field nearby. There were no black lines near or going through them.

Now we come to the interesting bit: Two years ago, a neighbour knocked on my door and said to come and see this. A swarm of bees had landed on the back of his new car and he wanted to get them moved before they messed up the gloss finish (bee poo can do this). Our first thoughts were to drive the car off and let the swarm trail behind or to get the hose pipe and flush them off. My neighbour's wife said that these measures were not going to happen.

After consulting the 'Yellow Pages', a local beekeeper was found who would arrive shortly. In the meantime, I decide to check for a black line. A line had appeared but it went to the rear of the car and not through it. A further surprising coincidence then happened: the regular postman, seeing the bees, told us that somebody else living about half a mile away had told her that his bees had swarmed and left their hive.

A quick check of the direction the black line had come from, gave a good indication where the bees had come from. Shortly, the beekeeper we had sent for arrived, and in a professional manner placed the bees in a basket. Before leaving, I talked to her about bees and black lines and had an invite to check out her hives.

After the swarm had been removed, individual bees began to arrive and settle on the car. This went on for about two hours, after which the black line disappeared and no more bees turned up. I took up the offer to visit the garden of the beekeeper. She had six hives placed in a random manner in a large garden and all the hives were interlinked with black lines approximately 12 inches wide.

In conclusion: It appears that the article I read stating that certain insects select black lines to build their homes on is incorrect. In reality, these lines are formed by the insects themselves forming communication lines for one another. In the case of the bees swarming, any returning to the original hive after the swarm had left would be left in limbo, with no idea where to go. The black communication line left by the swarm was a trail for the others to follow.

I believe the same is true for other flying insects such as wasps and hornets etc.. I have not been able to check out ant trails but if anyone has any ant hills in their vicinity, please share your findings.

When it comes to oak trees I've found that old oaks do have a line going through them, this being caused by flying insects taking advantage of the decaying timber to make their home and connect to colonies nearby.

If anyone has a chance to dowse and add to my findings, please report back.

A Note From Raymon

Howdy Folks.

My friend Tom McCarthy, author of 'The Breakthrough Code' invited me on two of his Global Energy Healing Summits.

Tom is an excellent person for an interview. He asks down-to-earth questions and understands the answers.

His 'Global Energy Healing Summit' has a ton of FREE information.

'Scientific research has proven the brain cannot determine the difference in reality and imagination.'

I have suggested this for years but had no proof. Am thankful Tom supported this idea. So now that we know, what can we do with it? It is probably unlimited. Have said for a long time that the mind is limited to the limitations we accept.

What happens when we refuse to accept limitations? MIRACLES !!!

There is a short video on Raymon Grace YouTube Channel of how I built a new knee. After three years it is still working fine.

I could have asked many thousands of people if I could do this and most or all would have thought I was insane. So I didn't ask. I just did it.

The problem with talking with closed minded people is~they have nothing useful to offer. You will always succeed better by believing you can ~than believing you can't.

So let me ask you. What could you accomplish if you didn't know you couldn't?

Now if the brain can't tell the difference in reality and imagination, why can we not imagine the things we want in life and have them manifest? WE CAN.

I imagined the place I wanted to live when I was around five years old. Have lived here for 48 years.

This is how I have been able to help people have good drinking water on six continents.

If you work or live with troublesome people~~and you continue to complain about them, do you really think they will improve?

How about IMAGINING them being kind and friendly. It doesn't cost anything and you will feel better imagining them that way and there is a good chance it will work. WHY?

Because 'Energy Follows Thought'. This was confirmed by Einstein and Willie Nelson ~~who has a song by that title.

April has rounded up my past newsletters and made them available at www.raymongrace.us Feel free to share with your friends.

THANK YOU for your nice comments concerning our Energy Clearing Project.

I am very THANKFUL to be of help to you.

How to Live to be 100 in Good Health

By Pearl Nicolino

Reprinted from the American Society of Dowser, 2018

I have only four more years to reach the goal of 100 years of age. I also have a valid driver's license until I reach 100. I learned to dowse in 1984. John Wayne Blassingame and Tony Gehringer were my teachers. I learned from Hanna Kroeger about dowsing the body, and I have used my dowsing for health.

I was born December 10, 1922, on a 365-acre farm outside Durango, Colorado. I rode a horse to school and had only one broken bone in my life—a thumb. One day, my horse missed a culvert and I fell off. I didn't go to a doctor because we lived nine miles from the hospital in Durango.

I learned to milk a cow at age five, and I used to squirt a little warm milk in my mouth. It tasted very good, and I give credit to good cow's milk for still having my teeth. We lost the family farm during the Depression and then moved to Durango. I joined the Methodist Church at age 12.

Dancing was allowed in the church basement, and it was the only church in town that didn't think dancing was a sin. I grew up with a deep faith that has taken me to where I am today. My father died when I was 1½ years old, and my oldest brother had drowned three months before that. My mother lived to be 94 years old and was a good role model for me.

I remember going to school but never took any vaccinations. I would get in the vaccination line, then follow the person ahead of me who just been vaccinated and get right out of the line. And so I never had any childhood vaccinations. I think my body was actually dowsing that vaccinations were not beneficial for my body even as a young child. When I travelled overseas in the 1970s, I took the doses in one-quarter strength. Even at such a low dose, my arm would swell to a large size. Good thing I got out of line earlier in my life!

I was number seven in my family but have out-lived all of my siblings by many years. Married in 1939, I had two boys and one girl. I have out-lived two of my children. Losing a child is by far the greatest pain a mother must endure. I went back to school in 1960 with my two sons—the older son back home after serving 4½ years in the submarine service and the younger son just graduating from high school.

I got my degree in Medical Assisting and made the dean's honour roll with a 4.0 average. I am a certified massage therapist, kinesiologist, and nutritionist. Being healthy has always been at the top of the list.

I take no medications and still cook every day. I take vitamins and drink lots of good water. I go to yoga weekly, which helps with balance and inner peace. I took up painting as therapy after I lost my daughter in 1966. I still paint and have been teaching painting for the past 15 years.

Music also plays a big part in my life. I started singing in the choir at age 12, was in a barbershop quartet and chorus in 1950. By 1960, I also started to play the banjo, and I still play it. I am in a three-piece trio here in Sun City and outer areas, playing for nursing homes and private parties. I was emcee for the Dowser's Fun Night in Santa Cruz for 23 years! Humour is very important for longevity. Without laughter and fun, you die.

One of the most recent things I have been aware of is loving oneself! People with physical ailments do not love themselves! Another major thing I have found is being able to let go of the past! Not letting go of the past is like crossing the river in a boat and putting all the old hurts, frustrations, anger, and disappointments in the boat and taking it all with you.

I like the part of the Buddha philosophy that says: “resist nothing.” If you can accept whatever is presented to you, don't resist. Resistance causes stress, and stress is at the bottom of all diseases and ailments.

I was awarded my second Legend Award at the West Coast Dowsing Conference in July of this year. In response, I said that the two things that have been the most helpful to me in my lifetime are numerology and dowsing. Numerology helps you to understand challenges and what you came to learn in this lifetime, and dowsing helps you to sort it all out.

Want a Miracle? Try Absent/Distant healing

By Eugene Maurey

Reprinted from the Ozark Research Institute, Summer 2022

Absent healing has been called the pearl of all healing. It is a process that can produce amazing results, yet its procedure is quite simple.

During the past year, I directed healing to a woman who had been in a coma for days. Using the method I will describe, she suddenly opened her eyes and within 10 days left the hospital, well on the mend.

On another occasion, a man in Portland who is paralysed on one side of his body, walked out of the hospital on the day after the healing was projected on him.

I could go on to describe miracle after miracle, (actually, if we understand the laws of the Universe, we would not call extraordinary events miracles). Instead, I will add that I am not very much impressed when a healing does occur, but surprised when I have seen no results.

In explaining my method, I must ask you to accept three premises:

- (1) There is an Unlimited Power available to you,
- (2) There is an Infinite Intelligence you can tap into and
- (3) The Power and Intelligence are everywhere at the same time.

This concept is often referred to as the Superconscious Mind, its use accomplishes Miracles in everyday living. This is ALSO the 'software' used in producing prosperity, and in bringing to oneself the right circumstances in life for companionship, health and good living. For healing of others, a fourth ingredient must be added: Love for Your Fellow Man.

These four concepts could be one definition of God.

Here is the procedure: A name of a person who is ill is given to me with his/her approximate age. I ask for no further information. Psychically I may determine the area of illness, but usually I don't bother as it really is not necessary. The Infinite Intelligence knows everything about my patient, more than I could possibly diagnose.

Occasionally, I use a pendulum, I will determine the percentage of health of a person, equating 100% as the best health that person had attained in his/her lifetime. This becomes a yardstick in the evaluating of the person's progress when later checking the person with the pendulum.

I liken the Healing Power I used to a shaft of light in enveloping my patient. I visualize a white light but I'm sure any colour will do as long as the INTENT is focused on healing.

I concentrate on seeing the light on the patient, until my mind slips off into another direction. (It is difficult to concentrate on any subject more than 15 to 45 seconds.)

At the moment my mind wanders, I know that I have reached the seat of the Infinite Power and Intelligence, and the healing is done. This switch over may take a split second, but this is ample time to produce the 'miracle'. The key word is concentration.

You will note that I have relatively little to do with the resulting healing. I have no medical training and have no idea why a thought can heal another person's mind, or pop a slipped disc into place. The Infinite Intelligence and Power do the work, not I.

I have also learned not to specifically expect what a healing should accomplish. I simply know what happens will be in the best interest of the patient. Let me illustrate with the final case.

The husband of a woman I know, was suffering from the final stages of terminal cancer. I was not aware of the situation until informed that the medication could no longer dull the patient's pain, and that the woman was exhausted by the three weeks at his bedside. Upon hearing this I immediately closed my eyes, relaxed and concentrated on a white light of healing enveloping the patient's body. After some 30-60 seconds my mind slipped away from the man, and I knew the job was done.

I smiled and felt at peace with the healing. A few minutes later as my informant walked away, I pointed to the wall clock and said, note the time. It was 3:05 p.m. The patient died at precisely 3:00 p.m. This too was a healing.

To summarise the procedure: sit quietly and relax, possibly taking a deep breath or two to aid relaxing. Visualise the patient standing, or lying in a bed. You need not concern yourself with what the person looks like. Then visualize a shaft of a white light enveloping the person, and mentally equate the light to the healing power. Concentrate on this light until your mind drifts away to an entirely different thought. The healing is done.

Clearing Dark Energies with Light and Love - Patricia Rose -

Patricia has been propelled into clearing dark energies, due to the house she was living in, and the beings that were attracted to it. Through much reading, assistance from other energy workers, trialling techniques and trusting her psychic abilities, she removes dark energies from interfering with people and places.

In this talk she will share her journey infused with spirituality and compassion. She will unpack some workings of dark beings who use fear/anger to create chaos/disharmony/conflict, and how to program your pendulum to indicate the presence of these beings and entities.

Specifically, you will learn how to remotely clear geopathic stress which can lower vibrations; how to dowse the polarity of energy beings (including ghosts and spirits) and how to send them all to the light. The commands and divine connections shown will protect and empower you, other lightworkers and all of us who can use our dowsing to brighten the world.

It will be a practical session, so please bring your pendulum.

Book Review:

The Diviner's Handbook: A Guide to the Timeless Art of Dowsing, by Tom Graves

Anyone can learn to dowse-for precious metals, missing persons, water, the solution to a problem, or a myriad of other objectives. All that is required is practice, awareness, and a working knowledge of basic dowsing principles and mechanics.

Tom Graves' guidebook provides the tools whereby your natural ability to dowse can be turned into a reliable skill. With clear, insightful explanations and generous illustrations, the author shows you how to:

- Make and use simple, effective dowsing instruments
- Develop dependable methods of analytic and intuitive interpretation
- Experiment with a wide range of traditional and personal dowsing techniques
- Locate people, objects, and information; diagnose illness; and attune with plants and animals

Each of us is capable of detecting the subtle emanations and vibrations that surround us. The Diviner's Handbook helps you develop your own, individual talent and technique for dowsing, as a key to greater knowledge and the time-honored art of divination.

August 20th, 2023 - Dowsing Forum -

Last year's Forum was very successful. Everyone who attended learned something more about dowsing. What was shared was really worthwhile, and those who attended benefited.

It will be a chance for everyone to bring their questions, their stories of success and failure to share with everyone.

This will be an opportunity to learn and make your dowsing more accurate and more effective, basically a chance to share and learn. We all share so many issues in common, so when we hear how someone else resolved and dealt with their issues, we are better prepared to handle our own.

This is for everyone: new dowsers, hesitant dowsers and proficient dowsers, to share and discover solutions to any dowsing problems, and hear some great dowsing stories.

Bring your pendulum and a big smile!

In any case, you will leave enriched.
